Time: 8:30 AM until 12:00 PM

Who is fully qualified to operate an aerial lift on your jobsite?

These are some of the most commonly used pieces of equipment on construction sites and with this increasing popularity come a greater need for training. This course is designed to provide individuals with the working knowledge of how aerial lifts are properly operated in the workplace and the appropriate safeguards to incorporate while they are in use.

Participants will have the opportunity to learn not only what OSHA requires for proper protection against inappropriate use of aerial lifts, but also rehearse practical applications on how to protect themselves, as well as fellow workers, with the latest equipment on the market.
